I think most of you already know that 2025 was an unprecedented year for New Hampshire PBS. The gap in our budget, caused by the loss of federal funding, continues to represent a significant challenge for NHPBS, and it will have an impact felt beyond this calendar year. Yet, when I look back on 2025, I see a year filled with joy, new beginnings and gratitude. Now more than ever, that was made possible by members like you.

First, thank you for continually showing up for NHPBS this year. When we told you that we needed your support, we were incredibly moved by how many of you stepped in to fight for public media. Whether it was contacting lawmakers, getting the word out on social media or donating money, you told us and the world how much NHPBS means to you.

Throughout the year, we heard from PBS kids who grew up loving ARTHUR or READING RAINBOW and now watch SESAME STREET and DONKEY HODIE with their own children. We met long-time members who have been donating since I, CLAUDIUS set a new bar for TV drama, and we've talked to countless viewers about how much they value the unbiased, in-depth journalism of PBS NEWS HOUR and FRONTLINE.

All year, we've worked to grow that legacy. Your support has been put to good use by our small but mighty team, because our purpose is the same in December as it was in January: to inform, entertain and inspire our audience in the Granite State and beyond.

In fact, because of your support, we were able to broaden our audience during the premiere of season 20 of WINDOWS TO THE WILD. We unveiled a new digital-first approach to releasing stories, posting bite-sized video shorts on YouTube and social media in the weeks before the WINDOWS TO THE WILD broadcast premiere. It takes time and expertise to keep pace with changing technology, but with your help, we brought the joy of Willem Lange and the outdoors to a new generation.

This September, we premiered the new series SENIORITY AUTHORITY with the support of travel education company Road Scholar. Host Cathleen Toomey spoke to experts about everything from rightsizing your home and finding purpose after retirement to making conversations about our final wishes easier. It's essential viewing that you simply won't find on commercial television.

Off the air, our staff was busy around the state, participating in local celebrations like Concord's Halloween Howl, hosting a screening of Ken Burns' film THE AMERICAN REVOLUTION with NH Civics for high school students in Keene, and talking about resources like PBS LearningMedia with educators at the NH Council of the Social Studies conference—and that was just two weeks in late October and early November.

Now more than ever, the value that public media provides is essential to our community. On air, online and in person, NHPBS is a place where quality and accessibility won't be compromised. It's a bastion of fact-checked news and analysis. It's home to children's programming created with input from educators and child psychologists. It's a library of documentaries and dramas that expand our world rather than creating insular bubbles.

And, now more than ever, we need your help to keep this valuable resource available to everyone in our community, regardless of income.

A generous anonymous donor feels the same way and has pledged to match every gift up to $100,000, so your gift can go twice as far during this season of giving. Whether you want to increase your donation, renew your membership or become a member for the first time, now is the time to do it! Please visit nhpbs.org/match to double your impact and keep NHPBS thriving for years to come.
